PREFACE

Comparative photo analysis was performed on Meng-tzu and Wen-shan areas to identify Chinese Communist ground force installations (See location map). [ ] information places the 38th Infantry Division at Meng-tzu and indicates a probable relationship to activity at Wen-shan. Non-ground force military installations are excluded from this report.

This report is divided in two parts: Meng-tzu (Part I) and Wen-shan (Part II). The location for each installation is provided along with a summary and a chronological account of new observations. A table of vehicles/pieces of equipment identified by date of observation and by location follows both Part I and Part II of the report.

DRIVER-TRAINING AREA

1. LOCATION:

A number of "figure-8" driver-training courses are observed on the Meng-tzu Airfield [ ] which is located on the southern outskirts of the town (See Figures 2 and 6).

2. SUMMARY:

The Meng-tzu Airfield appears abandoned for aircraft usage. The airfield was observed on [ ] coverage, at which time no driver-training activity was present. Since that date, the number of "figure-8" courses observed has varied as indicated below:

POSSIBLE HOSPITAL AREA

23 24N-103 26E

1. LOCATION:

This facility is located 3.0 nm NE of Meng-tzu (See Figures 2 and 7).

2. SUMMARY:

This facility has been reported previously as Meng-tzu Army Barracks NE [redacted] however, many of the identifying features of a barracks installation are not observed. Its location in an agricultural area and absence of identifying barracks features may indicate another function.

MENG-TZU RADIO STATION YU-KOU-FU
23 26N-103 17E

The Meng-tzu Radio Station is located 7 nm NW of the city of Meng-tzu. The installation, not in existence in [redacted] was first observed in [redacted]. The installation was extended across the road and two unidentified buildings were added.

The installation contains the following: one transmitter building, two generator houses, one administration building/barracks, two unidentified buildings, and two stick mast antennas.

This site is in direct alignment with the NW runway and inner beacon marker of the Meng-tzu West Airfield and is a probable radio range station for the airfield.

COMMUNICATION STATION

The communication station is located 3.5 nm NW of Meng-tzu. This installation is part of a barracks area associated with the Meng-tzu West Airfield and contains the following: one transmitter building, one generator house, three support buildings and six stick mast antennas.

This communication station is probably used by the Air Force. Association of this installation with ground force units is undetermined.

PROBABLE MILITARY HEADQUARTERS AREA

23 22N-103 23E

1. LOCATION:

This installation is located on the southern edge of Meng-tzu between the Army Barracks South and the Meng-tzu Airfield [REDACTED] (See Figures 2 and 9).

2. SUMMARY:

The installation, comprised of five (5) areas, was formerly associated with the airfield. The airfield, abandoned for aircraft usage, is being utilized for driver-training.

On [REDACTED] coverage, extensive trenching activity and AAA defensives were observed at the Infantry Division Headquarters and Army Barracks West, Army Barracks South, and this installation. The concurrency of this activity indicates a probable relationship.

The installation contains:
